

Ansborough Bridge Letting Is June 10

Council Rejects 35 MPH Speed on 218

A hearing and bid letting for work involved in the approach to the new Ansborough Ave. bridge were set for June 10 by the city council Monday night.

Mayor Lloyd Turner said it is hoped the project, which will include paving, sewer installation and landscaping from Black Hawk Road to the new route of Hwy. 63 will be complete this year.

Estimated cost of the approach work, to tie in with the bridge over Black Hawk Creek for which a contract was let earlier this Spring, was placed at $302,287.

Excavation to provide fill for the approaches will be from the creek, providing a fishing pond that will be developed as part of Hope Martin Park by the park department.

Speed Request

In other business, the council denied a request by the Cedar-Lo Commercial Club that the speed limit on Hwy. 218 North be reduced from 45 to 35 miles an hour.

Mayor Turner said the council in 1966 asked the speed limit be dropped, but that the Iowa Highway Commission and Waterloo police department recommended against the change, contending it would create a greater hazard.

Turner stated, "I don't believe in my own mind that the Highway Commission has changed its mind."

He added traffic would be slowed somewhat when a temporary traffic light is installed on the busy four lane highway at the entrance to K-Mart and Welles Department stores.

Final Hurdle

The final hurdle to construction of the new headquarters fire station and four substations when the council accepted bids totaling $1,058,580 for the five structures.

Bids were let for the headquarters station at Franklin and E. 3rd Streets to Jens Olsen & Sons, general contract, $385,120; Oscar D. Hansen & Sons Plumbing and Heating, mechanical, $84,630, and E&S Electric, of Cedar Rapids, electrical, $37,234.

For the substations, bids were let to Youngblut Construction Co., general, $383,443; Carpenter Plumbing Co., mechanical, $141,970, and E&S Electric, electrical, $28,178.

All winning bidders submitted low bid. Apex Electric Co., of Waterloo, was low on its bids for substations, but E&S Electric won the bid for electrical work on the basis that its total asking, including the headquarters station, was lowest.

The headquarters station will include a $11,288 standby generator to provide emergency power for all stations.

A fee for Stenson and Warm, Inc., architects, of $57,761, was approved with payment of 80 per cent authorized immediately.

Relay Petition

The council voted to relay a petition signed by about 1,500 persons requesting city cooperation with the Waterloo Board of Education in developing a 45-acre campus at East High to the school board.

A resident of the proposed campus area, M. J. Johnson, of 611 Lime St., told the council he knew of no support for the project in his neighborhood.

"East High needs ground, but not any 45 acres," Johnson declared.

Johnson asked who signed the petitions and what effect the project would have on tax rolls, and Mayor Turner suggested he ask the school board who he said was in charge of the plan.

Councilmen Robert E. Keller and Irvin J. Schmitt asked George Griebow, Urban Renewal Board administrator, who prepared and distributed the petitions.

Griebow, whose office has worked with the school board to prepare an application for a federal open spaces grant for the $3.25 million plan, responded that the petition wording was prepared by the school board and distributed by civic and service clubs, churches and schools.

The council adopted an ordinance establishing the street grade for streets involved in the 1968 paving project.

Mayor Turner asked and received assurances from City Engineer Jay Culver that the grade would not cause steep rises from the street to driveways off the streets to be paved.

Director Appointed

Councilmen voted to approve appointment of Peter Middleton, 22, an East High graduate, as new executive director of the Human Rights Commission.

Mayor Turner said Middleton, who is graduating from Morning Side College, will begin June 1 with a salary of $600 per month for the rest of the year.

Outgoing director Ron James, who is an assistant county attorney, will work with Middleton until July 1 in a transition, Turner reported.

Middleton's appointment was asked by the Human Rights Commission in a letter signed by its chairman, Eugene Endelevin.

A hearing was set for June 17 on the 1968 sanitary sewer program which involves parts of Brees St., Letsch Rd., Robin Rd., Avon Ave., Idaho St., Donald St. and Independence Ave.

$131,650 Project

Estimated cost of the sewer project is $131,650 with $45,602 to be paid by assessments against benefiting property owners.

The council also:

1. Denied a request by the Rev. John Aebly, pastor of Grace Brethren Church, that curbing be omitted on Minnesota St. beside the church to provide for parking between the street and sidewalk because of a traffic hazard for vehicles backing out. It was agreed to permit parallel parking on both sides of the street on Sundays, however.

2. Approved a request from Tunis Den Hartog for establishment of a CPA office in an existing "S" shopping center district south of Ridgeway Avenue, west of Kimball Avenue.

3. Agreed to delay paving the 100 block of Ash Street until after a storm sewer is installed late this year or in 1969. The paving was requested by Lonnie Mooror, 123 Ash St., and others in the neighborhood.

4. Amended the zoning ordinance to rezone from R-2 to C-2 commercial a parcel along E. 11th Street from Mulberry to Fowler Streets for construction of a drive-in.

5. Instructed the city engineer to prepare plans for the 1968

Mayor Pledges Help Waterloo Joins In Disaster Aid

Mayor Lloyd Turner said Monday night that Waterloo will join in efforts to provide as much aid as possible to northeast Iowa cities stricken by tornadoes last week.

In speaking to the city council, Turner said, "It behooves us as a major city in northeast Iowa to assist in whatever capacity we can."

Turner, chairman of a disaster aid task force committee named by the Iowa League of Municipalities, toured Oelwein, Maynard and Charles City earlier Monday.

More Today

He said the city sent some men and equipment to help in the initial cleanup and that a street sweeper and end loaders would be sent Tuesday.

In addition, he said the city was sending four men from its building inspector department and one from the city engineer's staff to Charles City Tuesday to work with some 25 inspectors from throughout the state to help survey the condition of damaged buildings.

Councilman Charles

sidewalk repair program to cost an estimated $14,600 and assessed property owners involved.

6. Granted a new Class "C" liquor license to Glenn A. Wright, operator of Glenn's Tap, 1445 Sycamore St.

7. Received a certification list from the Civil Service Commission certifying five officers for promotion to the rank of Bureau Commander. They are: Chief of Detectives Robert Beener, Capt. Roland Drewelow, Capt. Paul Stapella, Capt. Raymond Clausman and Lt. Lenneth Jacobsen.

Mini-Buses Asked For Intended for Downtown

First there were mini-skirts, size is chosen.

Of this, he said the federal government would pay two-thirds of the cost, if the application for aid on four such buses is approved.

Authorization of such aid will come from the Department of Housing and Urban Development which paid two-thirds of a $495,000 cost for 30 new buses before Congress concerning flood control allocations, saw such buses in operation.

Core Area

"They would let people park their car and get on a small bus to get to the core area easily," Turner said.

He added, "I feel strongly this will help spur interest in the downtown area."

Turner estimated the buses, one size holding 15 to 21 persons and another carrying 19 to 23 persons, would cost $14,000 to $15,200, depending upon which buses obtained in the initial grant.

It is proposed to have two routes for the mini-buses:

One would be from Mulberry and E. 5th Sts. going west on 5th to W. 5th and Bluff Sts. and then back east on W. 4th and E. 4th Sts. to Mulberry.

The other would be from the intersection of E. 4th and Mulberry, proceeding up E. 4th St. over the river to W. 4th and Bluff St., then going to W. Park Ave. and back to the east side on Park, returning to Mulberry and E. 4th Sts.

Time cycle for the trips for the tentative route would be 7 to 10 minutes. A fee of 10 cents is contemplated.

An urban renewal synopsis of the plan stated withdrawal of the larger 35-passenger buses from the downtown shopping center would result in relieving traffic congestion in the core area during major bus stop times.

It said the plan also would mean that the larger buses could run on a better system to provide more service to the residential area by stopping at the boundary of the core area.

As are the larger buses, the proposed mini-buses would be leased to the Waterloo-Cedar Falls Transit Co. for operation.
